Bataillons et compagnies de campagne, Corps de génie canadien

Introduction

Pendant presque toute la durée de la guerre, chaque division avait trois compagnies d'ingénieurs de campagne et un bataillon de pionnier. Par contre, en avril 1918, une réorganisation majeure des forces eut lieu ce qui eut pour résultat que chaque division avait maintenant une brigade d'ingénieur composé de trois bataillons d'ingénieur et une unité de pontoon bridging transport. Chaque bataillon était composé d'un quartier général et de quatre compagnies, dont trois étaient organisées pour les travaux généraux de génie et l'autre pour les tunnels et le minage. Le noyau de chaque bataillon venait d'une des compagnies de campagne et l'autre d'un bataillon pionnier.
